

Would you rather ...?

Here's a public speaking game everybody can play: parents, kids, grand parents, aunts, uncles, cousins, friends, or neighbors. "Would you rather" is great for long car trips, superb for encouraging conversation at the dinner table, brilliant as classroom filler between lessons ...

And here's a set of 48 questions to start you off.

There's only one rule. Each speaker must use the card they draw and make a choice, even if they think both are bad! How long a person speaks for is up to you. However one minute is a good goal to start with, and perhaps three is the maximum!

Happy holidays,

Susan

PS. If you like this game you'll find many more here.

48 Would you rather questions

Would you rather always lose, or never play?

Would you rather be popular and plain, or attractive and ignored?

Would you rather be told a white lie, or the truth?

Would you rather have an unsatisfying job, or be unemployed?

Would you rather be talked about, or not talked about at all?

Would you rather have it all, or know it all?

Would you rather receive $5 a day for life, or $50,000 now?

Would you rather love once and lose, or never love at all?

Would you rather know what the future will bring, or live it as it happens?

Would you rather be self-employed, or work for someone else?

Would you rather live in luxury for a little while, or frugally for a longer time?

Would you rather live in the best house on the worst street, or in the worst house on the best street?

48 Would you rather questions

Would you rather believe the best of someone, or the worst of someone?

Would you rather have a luxury holiday with people you don't like, or a cheap weekend away with people you love?

Would you rather be rich and ugly, or poor and good looking?

Would you rather be respected, or liked?

Would you rather end world wars, or world hunger?

Would you rather be blind, or deaf?

Would you rather be the wind, or a wave in the ocean?

Would you rather be the earth, or the sky?

Would you rather be a dog, or a cat?

Would you rather know how to read, or how to cook?

Would you rather be a friend to 2000 on Facebook, or 5 in real-time face-to-face?

Would you rather explore the wilderness of a country, or spend time in a city?

48 Would you rather questions

Would you rather have parents who were poor and loved you, or have parents who were rich and had no time for you?

Would you rather be admired for your looks, or for your brain?

Would you rather tell a lie to avoid an unpleasant scene, or tell the truth and face it?

Would you rather be known for your intelligence, or your courage?

Would you rather lose all your old memories, or be unable to make new ones?

Would you rather always know what someone was thinking, or be perpetually amazed?

Would you rather do ten kind unknown acts, or one kind act that is known by everybody?

Would you rather be simple and happy, or be intelligent and unhappy?

Would you rather trust everyone, or trust no one?

Would you rather have one very difficult child, or three angelic children?

Would you rather keep all your old friends and be unable to make new ones, or make new ones and be unable to keep your old ones?

Would you rather make a mistake publicly and learn, or never make a mistake publicly and never learn?

48 Would you rather questions

Would you rather have no one come to your wedding, or no one come to your funeral?

Would you rather face your worst enemy, or your biggest fear?

Would you rather be only able to whisper, or able to shout?

Would you rather eat your favorite food at every meal for the next two weeks, or never again?

Would you rather go without access to the internet, or transport for a month?

Would you rather be a parent, or a child?

Would you rather have the moon shine all the time, or the sun?

Would you rather save the life of someone close to you, or the lives of 5 strangers?

Would you rather age from the neck up, or from the neck down?

Would you rather be kind, or attractive?

Would you rather be alone for the rest of your life, or always be surrounded by annoying people?

Would you rather lose your right hand, or your left foot?